

Statistics & Risk Assessment will tell the government to abandon Early Bird Policy

July 14, 2021 – The Royal Mount Vema Center for Statistics & Risk Assessment will tell the Government next week to abandon its 'Early Bird Policy'. Sources familiar with the Department's work told VSBCnews.

The Statistics & Risk Assessment is a Mount Vema Royal Department which oversees and verifies the accuracy of most of the data supplied by Mount Vema economic analysts, security analysts, and intelligence agencies including data from VISSA (The Mount Vema Counter Intelligence Agency) and RISS (The Overseas Intelligence Agency of Mount Vema).

The Department also analyses in detail data provided by the Mount Vema Financial Crimes Enforcement Network, and the Anti-Drugs, Anti-Fraud, Anti-Terrorist, and the Internal and Criminal Intelligence Agency (counterintelligence) of the Mount Vema Royal Police.

The Statistics & Risk Assessment Department will tell the Government that its 'early bird policy' which is a policy used by every Mount Vema entity and openly encouraged by the Government should be abandoned because it risks Mount Vema citizens, Mount Vema corporations and governments agencies missing out on opportunities offered by foreign entities who genuinely did not know about Mount Vema and the economic opportunities it is creating.

The Early Bird Policy was introduced to counter the issue created by the fake news media (hate for profit) to defame the City of Mount Vema Project. So, the Government decided that priority, flexibility, and opportunities should only be given first to those who joined at a time when others were hesitating due to negative press to simply defame Mount Vema which caused an estimated loss of more than $4 billion US dollars in revenue for a period of 7 years.
